

LAUNCH PLAN · REVISION 1 · BUILT AROUND OUR PROPS

Same plan. Fewer props.

Every post and script in the Yellow Edition survives. These are only the recommended changes, so we can shoot it with what we actually have.

WE GOT YOU.

CAST	PHONES	FILM	POSTS DROPPED	READ WITH
1 male model	5–7 in total	About 30 sheets	None	The Yellow Edition deck

STARTING POINT

What we have, and what we don't

WE HAVE

- ✓ 1 male model
- ✓ White backdrop
- ✓ Kiosk cutting machine
- ✓ About 30 film sheets (CLEAR, PRIVACY, MATTE, TUFF)
- ✓ 1 uncut PRIVACY sheet · 1 blank sheet
- ✓ 1–2 dummy phones with intact screens
- ✓ 1 working phone
- ✓ 3–4 damaged phones
- ✓ Cutting mat · black cloth
- ✓ Microfiber cloths, dust wipes, dust-removal stickers
- ✓ Kurta · wristwatch
- ✗ 2 black Wrapshap t-shirts (logo still has the stars)

NOT GETTING → WHAT IT CHANGES

More people on camera	Every skit is played by one actor
Borrowed phones	A1 uses only the phones we have
Curved-edge phone	S7 loses the curve shot
Phone to break, steel ball, drop stand	B6 has no impact test
Old and wrong-size films	We cut them on the kiosk
Star-free t-shirts, 3rd t-shirt	No Wrapshap tees on camera
The four finish boxes	The kiosk and the films replace them
Stopwatch	The working phone's stopwatch app
Scissors	S4 and B3 use two takes, not half a film
Uncle outfit	The kurta covers it
Paratha / cooking oil	Real fingerprints instead
Cushion, cricket bat	No answer, so planned without them

Seven rules that change everywhere

01

The model plays every role

Two-person skits become a double role (lock the camera, change costume, cut the parts together) or a POV shot, where the camera is the second character.

02

No Wrapshap t-shirts on camera

The logo stars can't be fixed, so he wears a plain dark tee to play staff. If the Wrapshap tee goes in at all: wide shots only, never with his back to camera.

03

Three looks

Plain dark tee: Wrapshap staff.
Kurta + wristwatch: uncle or shopkeeper.
His own casual shirt: customer.

04

“Almost” films are made on the kiosk

Cut a film for a slightly different phone model. That's exactly what a normal shop does. Set aside 4–5 of the 30 sheets for this.

05

The kiosk replaces the boxes

Every reveal opens with the machine cutting that finish.

06

Stopwatch = the working phone

Its stopwatch app is the on-camera stopwatch. Corner timers are added in the edit from the real elapsed time. No speed-ramps.

07

He never plays a real customer

The model stays out of C3, C4, C5 and D1. If he appeared there, they would be fake testimonials.

Assumption

Whoever holds the camera can say a line off-screen. If not, every off-camera line becomes on-screen text.

A1 and A2, with what we have

A1

W-3 MON · PHOTO 4:5 + REEL 9:16

Spot your almost

WAS 9 phones: 8 with real worn films from friends and family, 1 spotless.

NOW Every phone we have (5-7). Six gives the cleanest 2x3 grid for 4:5.

- Damaged phones: their real damage (spiderweb, cracked guard).
- Dummies: wrong-model kiosk cuts (camera hole off, crooked, lifted edge).
- Working phone: the spotless one, dropped in last.

ON-SCREEN TEXT

» 8 GOT "ALMOST".

» 5 GOT "ALMOST". 1 GOT CUT FOR IT.

New house rule: some almos are staged now, so the caption never claims these are customers' phones. Match the number to the phones you lay out.

A2

W-3 FRI · REEL 9:16 · 12-15S

Every phone falls

WAS Rickshaw, bike pocket, shaadi dance floor, last-ball six, kitchen counter, toddler's grip.

NOW Six moments one person can do, no extras:

- 1 Rickshaw step
- 2 Bike pocket
- 3 Last-ball six, celebrating in front of the TV (no bat needed)
- 4 Mehndi dance practice in the living room
- 5 Kitchen counter
- 6 Phone dropping onto his face in bed

How: drop a damaged phone or a dummy. A pillow or folded blanket out of frame catches it. Freeze labels change to match the six moments.

No boxes: the kiosk opens every reveal

B2

W-1 TUE · CHANGED

Meet the squad

Instead of four boxes: four freshly cut films on the cutting mat, in order CLEAR, PRIVACY, MATTE, TUFF. Leave the backing on so they curl slightly. Add the labels in the edit.

Keep the mat's logo out of frame if it has the stars.

B3

W-1 WED · CHANGED

CLEAR · Spot the film

Same phone, locked camera. One take bare, one take with CLEAR, put side by side. The plan's look was already a split screen. No scissors needed.

Opens on the kiosk cutting CLEAR.

B4

W-1 THU · SMALL CHANGE

PRIVACY · Side-eye proof

Only the opener changes: the kiosk cutting PRIVACY instead of a box. The one-take gimbal arc on a bus or in a café stays exactly as planned, on the working phone.

B5

W-1 FRI · SMALL CHANGE

MATTE · Sun, glare, paratha fingers

No oil needed. He rubs his fingertips on his forehead before touching the screen, which leaves real prints. Keep "paratha fingers" in the on-screen text.

Opens on the kiosk cutting MATTE.

B6 and D3

B6

W-1 SAT · REEL 9:16 · HIGH FRAME RATE
TUFF · Built for butterfingers

WAS Steel ball on a real phone, real height on screen, box-and-bat opener.

NOW Slow-motion flex test. Bend and twist TUFF hard, then let it snap back flat. Black cloth, one hard side light. Opens on the kiosk cutting TUFF.

ON-SCREEN TEXT

- » TUFF. BENDS. SPRINGS BACK.
- » 0.25-0.35 MM · 4H-5H · EPU LAYER SPREADS THE HIT.
- » HELPS PROTECT AGAINST DROPS.
- » ~~THE FILM TOOK THE HIT.~~

House rule: bend it once before the shoot. If it creases, don't show the bend. The caption hook needs a new line, because the old one claims an impact test.

D3

WEEKLY FROM L+1 · REEL 9:16 · 15-20S
The sneaky neighbour

WAS Two people in a locked two-shot.

- NOW POV.
- The working phone, PRIVACY on and screen lit, sits on the café table or office desk.
 - The camera sits where its owner would be.
 - The model is the neighbour, leaning into frame.
 - Cut to his side angle: the screen is black.

Make it a character: the same neighbour every week is the joke. The 35° reveal stays identical every week.

One actor, three looks, ten scripts

SCRIPT	HOW IT WORKS NOW
S1 "Bilkul Fit Hai"	Double role
S2 The Bubble Roommate	No change (his hands + voiceover)
S3 60 Seconds, Go	Him against the machine
S4 Which Half?	Off-camera voice + two takes
S5 Uncle, Not the Kurta	Double role
S6 Your Phone Is Not a Mirror	He's the lead, off-camera friend
S7 "Glass Wala Do"	Off-camera customer, no curve
S8 Not Your Screen, Uncle	POV
S9 Types of Customers	Off-camera staffer line
S10 POV: I'm the Film	No change (his hands + voiceover)

THE THREE LOOKS

- TEE

Plain dark tee
Wrapshap staff
- KURTA

Kurta + wristwatch
Uncle or shopkeeper
- CASUAL

His own casual shirt
Customer

Shoot order: keep the plan's blocks (Machine: S1, S2, S3, S9, S10 · Table: S4, S5, S6, S7 · Window: S8). Inside each block, group by look, so all the kurta scenes are back to back. Expect a longer day: every two-person beat is shot twice.

S1, S3, S4, S5

S1 “Bilkul Fit Hai” · double role

Shopkeeper in the kurta, customer in the casual shirt. Shoot them in alternating shots, never in the same frame. The dummy wears a wrong-model kiosk cut: crooked, camera hole half over the lens. Dialogue stays as written.

S3 60 Seconds, Go · him vs the machine

He starts the stopwatch on the working phone: “Mujhe 60 second. Machine ko bhi.” (60 seconds for me. Same for the machine.) He tries all three jokes himself: the microfiber swan, “kacha papad, pakka papad” five times, the dust wipe he’s standing on. Cut back and forth with the machine. Ends on “Machine jeet gayi.”

S4 Which Half? · off-camera voice

He says “Left pe chamak hai.” The off-camera voice answers “Woh tumhara chehra hai.” If both dummies are the same model, put them side by side with CLEAR on one. If not, film the same dummy with and without the film and split the screen. A fingernail lifts the corner on the one with film.

S5 Uncle, Not the Kurta · double role

Uncle in the kurta wipes the dummy on it. The staffer (plain tee) is him too: “Uncle, ye kya kar diya?” The young female staffer becomes him. ASMR hands, kiosk cut. Last beat in alternating shots: uncle reaches for his kurta, cut to staff holding the phone away: “Kurta pehnne ke liye hai, uncle.”

S6, S7, S8, S9

S6 Your Phone Is Not a Mirror

He uses the glossy dummy as a mirror for his hair or beard under the tube lights. The off-camera voice says “Screen dekh rahe ho ya khud ko?” (Looking at the screen or at yourself?) The rest stays: kiosk cuts MATTE, same angle, the mirror trick fails.

S7 “Glass Wala Do” · off-camera customer

The customer is the off-camera voice. He plays the staffer looking into the camera and bends TUFF. Line becomes “Glass bulky hota hai, crack hota hai.” The curve claim goes (no curved phone). Macro along a flat edge. Post it at least a week away from B6: both use the bend.

S8 Not Your Screen, Uncle · POV

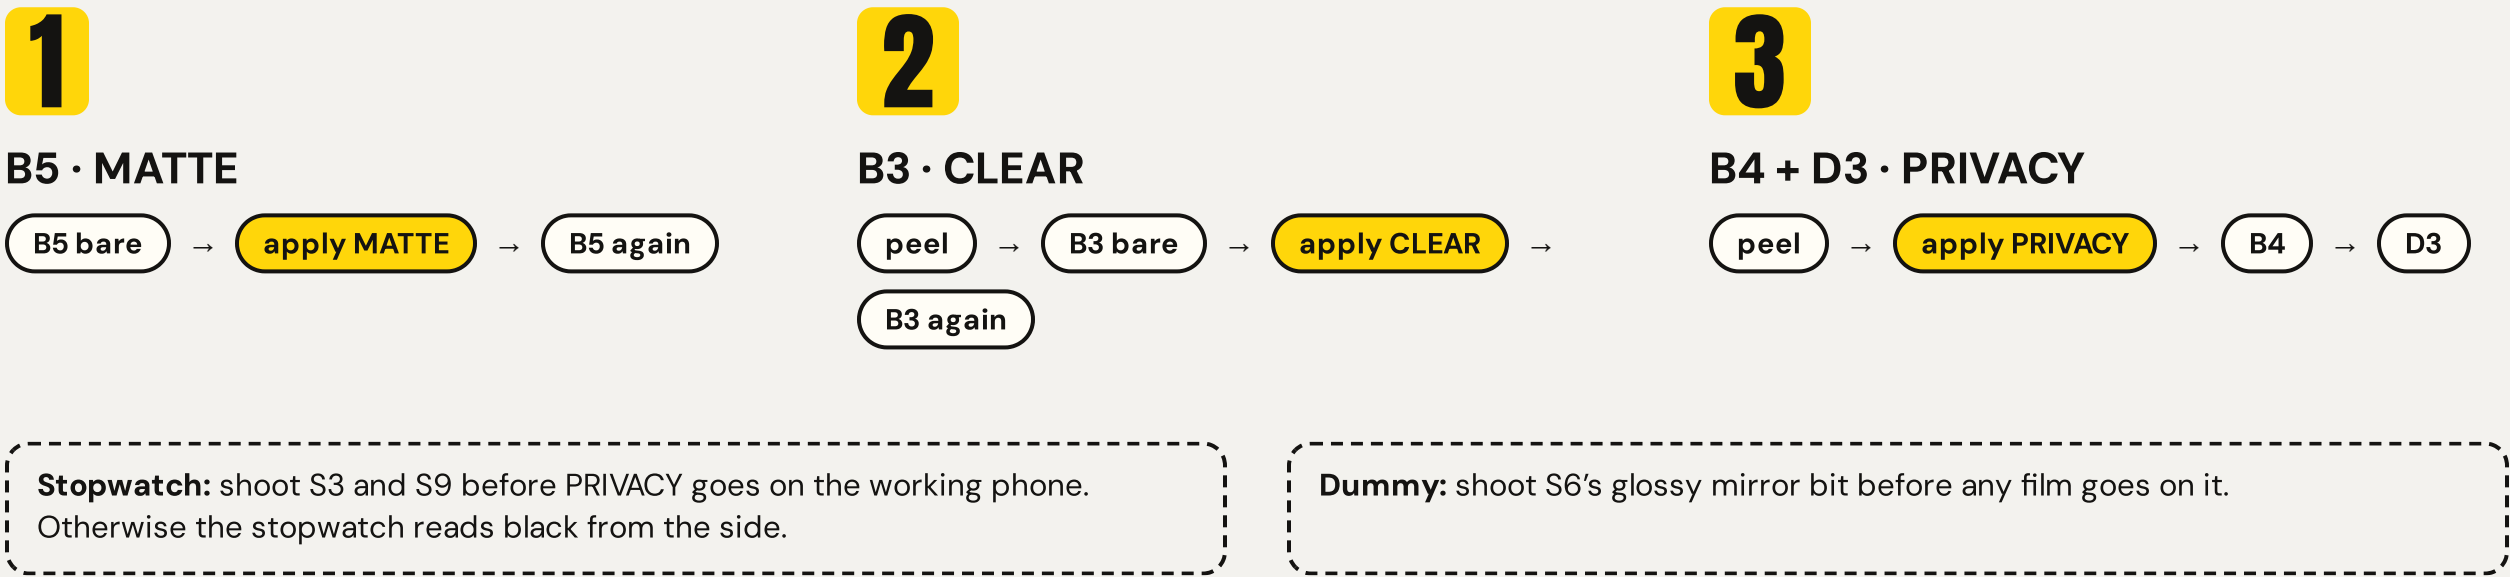

The camera is the person on the bench. The uncle (kurta, wristwatch) keeps sliding closer to the lens. The PRIVACY sheet is propped in the window: straight on you can see through it, from his side it's dark. He tries every angle, even crouching, then checks his watch.

S9 Types of Customers · small change

The staffer's line “Bas bhai, baaki machine ka kaam hai” becomes the off-camera voice. Use the three looks and the wristwatch to tell the four types apart. The speedrunner's timer is the working phone's stopwatch.

Shoot order for the working phone

Bare-screen shots come first, because every film has to come off before the next one goes on.

THE HONEST PART

What we lose, and what's still blocked

WHAT WE LOSE

B6 no longer proves impact

Impact is TUFF's whole point, so it's now the weakest of the four reveals. A ball bearing from a cycle shop and any old phone with an intact screen would bring the real test back.

A1 is smaller and partly staged

Fewer phones, and some almos are made on the kiosk instead of collected from real people.

"Glass can't follow a curve" is text only

It stays in D2 but is never shown on camera.

The factory day gets longer

Every two-person beat is shot twice, with a costume change in between.

NO LONGER NEEDED

Tape measure · green backdrop · blue backdrop

STILL A BLOCKER · NOT A PROP

The kiosk sign needs the sparkle before B1 and C1

Both show the sign in close-up. If it keeps the stars, frame those two posts without it.
